Wet Season

Rainy Season

WHAT HAPPENS

- Most of Botswana's annual rainfall occurs during this time.
- The rains are usually in the form of thunderstorms, often in the afternoon.
- Temperatures are hot and humid, especially from December to February.

IMPACTS

- Grass and vegetation grow rapidly—good for wildlife and farming.
- Some dirt roads become muddy and hard to use.
- Rivers and pans (seasonal lakes) fill up.

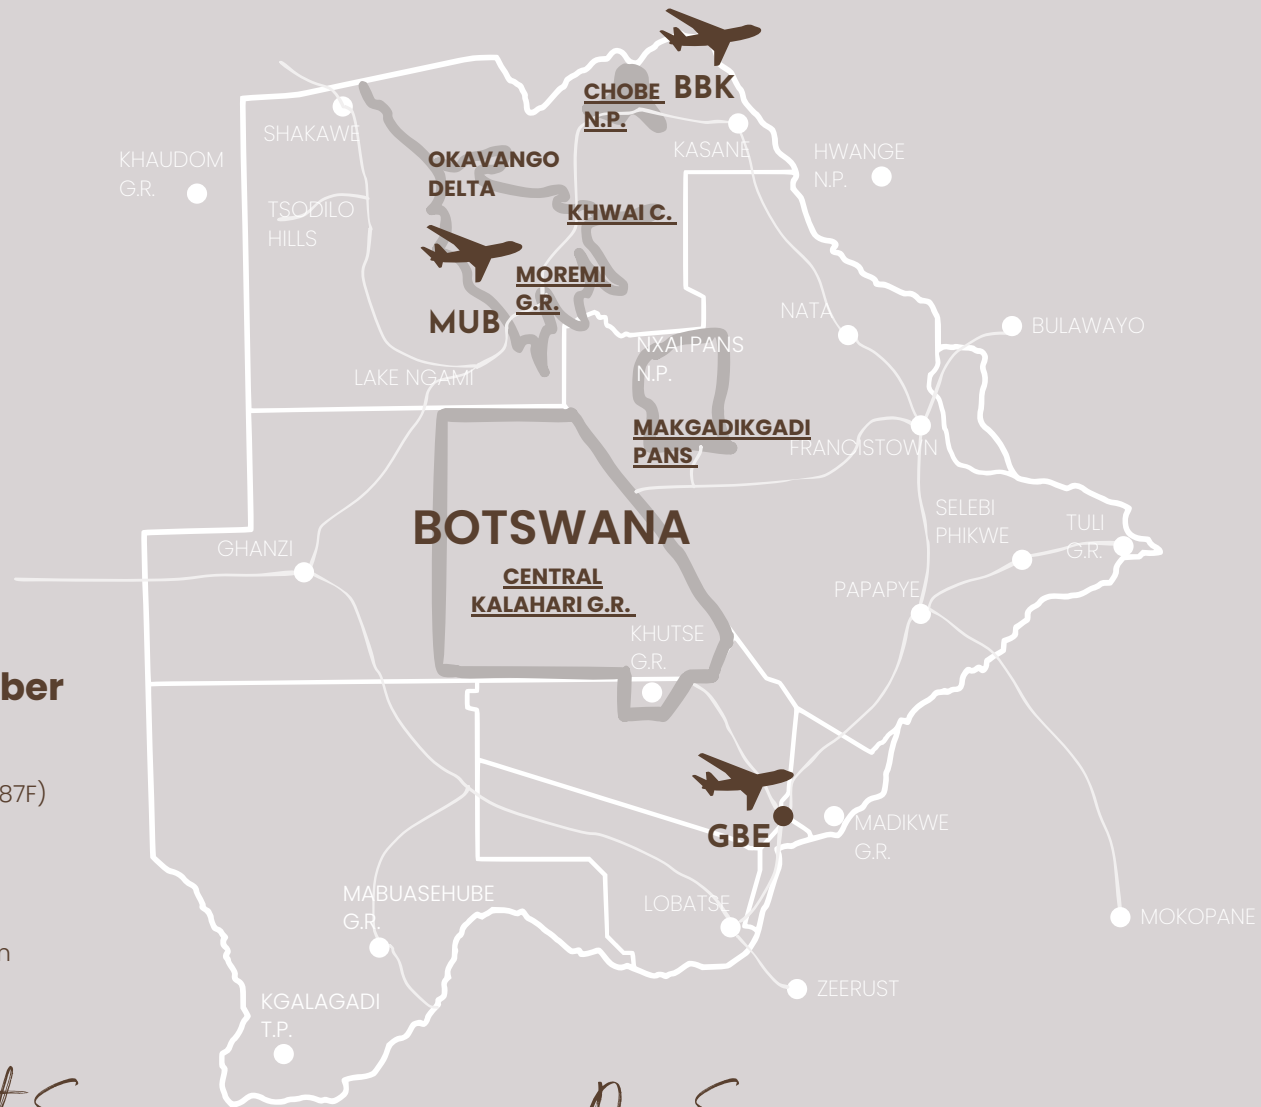

Dry Season

WHAT HAPPENS

- Very little to no rainfall.
- Temperatures are cooler, especially in the mornings and evenings during May to August.
- Skies are mostly clear and sunny.

IMPACTS

- Water sources dry up, so animals gather around permanent waterholes—making this the best time for wildlife viewing.
- The landscape becomes dry and dusty, with less green vegetation.
